TEACCH—An introduction to the principles and practices of structured TEACCHING

Wednesday & Thursday,
November 27th & 28th
9.15am to 3.30pm

£250
Led by
Alison Reevey Fosse Way School,
Longfellow Road,
Radstock BA3 3AL

This course is aimed at professionals working with primary aged children and those with complex needs.

Treatment and Education for Autistic and Communication impaired Children (TEACCH) is generally acknowledged to be the most widely used set of principles and practices for living and working with people with ASD.

Alison Reevey is a TEACCH Certified Advanced Consultant. She is an experienced trainer and has presented at the International INSET and TEACCH UK conferences.

Alison has worked with Division TEACCH at the University of North Carolina over a number of years as a member of the summer training teams.

This training is appropriate for professionals working in special schools and with younger or less able children in mainstream settings.

This course scored 8.8 out of 10 last year

“Fantastic course, Alison is clearly extremely knowledgeable with a wealth of experience. I have lots of information to take with me and strategies to implement.”
